WRCOG Celebrates Completion of 9th Fellowship Cohort and Prepares for 10th Cohort

The 9th cohort of the WRCOG Fellowship Program has successfully concluded, marking another year of achievement and growth. Fellows worked alongside local agencies on projects that strengthened the region while gaining valuable professional experience. Several fellows used the WRCOG Fellowship as a steppingstone to the next stage in their careers—securing permanent positions with their host agencies or quickly finding roles elsewhere in the public sector.

Teresa Aguilera, a fellow with the City of Menifee, reflected on her experience: “The WRCOG Public Service Fellowship gave me invaluable hands-on experience in the public sector. As a public administration graduate student, I had the privilege of working with the City of Menifee’s Engineering Department, where I learned about land development, stormwater management, and regulatory processes. I’m grateful for the opportunity to grow professionally alongside such strong leadership.”

With the 9th cohort now complete, WRCOG is preparing to welcome its 10th class of fellows, continuing a program that develops the next generation of public service professionals.
